TAX LAW CASE IS OF INTEREST HERE

Local People Speculate as to Whether or Not the New Indiana Measure Will Stand.

TEST CASE IS THREATENED

Number of Parties Announce That They Will File Test Case to Determine Its Validity.

Considerable interest is manifested here in the proposed test cases to be filed in Marion county to determine the validity of the new tax law. Opinion here is divided as to whether or not the measure will stand, although many believe that some sections will be declared void while others will remain in force following the decision of the supreme court.

One argument advanced here is that the old tax law was in force March 1, the date when the reapportionment of property throughout Indiana was started. The new tax law did not become effective until twelve days later, and the property that was assessed under the former law was reassessed under the new law. Some local attorneys believe this would invalidate the law so far as this year is concerned. On the other hand, other attorneys insist that the conflict is in dates is not material so long as all property throughout the state was assessed on the same basis which was done.

Indianapolis banks are resisting the law on the ground that their capital stock has been assessed by the county assessors. They contend that the state board of tax commissioners refuse to deduct the appraisal of their real estate which means that they are paying double taxes on it. Notice is given that the test case will be filed and the fight against the law will likely be made from several different angles.

The new dog tax law which became effective with the taxing measure is meeting opposition in several parts of the state. S. B. Wells, attorney at Scottsburg, has filed a case to test out this feature of the law. It is said that either side will carry it to the supreme court for decision.

Taxing officials are going ahead with their work the same as if there was no objection as the law stands until it is declared invalid. It is not believed likely that the cases will be decided in time to affect any payments this year even in case the measure is held unconstitutional.

HOME GROWN WATERMELONS FIND A READY SALE HERE

First of the Jackson County Product Brought to City Today—Drought Damages Vines.

Home grown watermelons—the Jackson county variety that is famous throughout the central west—were placed on the market today. One grower sold the melons from his wagon and quickly disposed of all that he brought in. Melons will be ripening more rapidly from this time and daily deliveries can be brought to the city. The height of the watermelon season, however, will not arrive for about two weeks, the growers state.

The drought is damaging the vines to some extent and unless there is rain within a few days the crop will be cut short. Most of the best melons are grown on sandy soil which dries out quickly and is the first to show the effects of a drought.

THREE ARRESTED FOR AUTO THEFT

Danville Men Charged With Stealing Automobile at Crothersville Sunday, July 20.

FORMER RESIDENTS OF TOWN

W. L. Taylor, Paul Taylor and Cecil Taylor Give Bond For Their Appearance in Local Court.

H. L. McCord, county sheriff, returned from Danville, Ind., Saturday evening where he arrested W. L. Taylor, Paul Taylor and Cecil Taylor, on grand larceny charge. The men are alleged to have stolen a Cheverlet automobile from Henry Kovener at Crothersville Sunday night, July 20.

The arrests followed after a trip to Danville made by Mr. Kovener, owner of the stolen car, and some friends. They reported here that the car was found in the possession of the three Taylors and had warrants issued for their arrest. The three Danville men were suspected after it had been learned from persons acquainted with them that the men were said to have been in Crothersville on the day that the automobile was stolen. They are former residents of Jackson county having resided in the country near Crothersville several years ago.

When the local men viewed the car at Danville, they say it had been

Although the temperature Sunday was "scorching" the reading of the government thermometer was not as high as many local people thought it would show. The mercury reached 95 degrees late Sunday afternoon. The heat, however, was thought by many to be the highest of the summer. The thermometer this afternoon showed a reading of 94 degrees. The minimum temperature during the night was 73 degrees.

SOLDIERS FITTED FOR LEADERSHIP

Speaker Says Heroes Are Trained to Assume Responsibilities of Reconstruction.

COMMUNITY DAY OBSERVED

Big Audiences Hear Interesting Programs at Special Services at Park Sunday.

The returned soldier, because of his training in discipline, his work on the battle field and in the trench during the World War is especially fitted to assume the leadership in the reconstruction period, according to the Rev. Thomas A. Grafton, pastor of the Third Christian church, Indianapolis, who delivered an interesting and practical address at Shields Park Sunday night in connection with the observance of community day. He said that the returned soldiers is looking for service to perform and that it is the duty of the church to invite him to participate in the work of the Master.

Mr. Grafton declared that the United States taught China the meaning of the Golden Rule when during the Boxer uprising Uncle Sam stepped in and demanded the return of large indemnities to China. The principle of the Good Samaritan was taught to Cuba by the United States in a very practical way when this country stepped in and prevented

RACE RIOTS ARE UNDER CONTROL IN CHICAGO

Trouble Starts When Negroes Enter Bathing Beach—Extra Police on Duty.

By United Press

Chicago, July 28.—Race rioting here today subsided to a guerilla warfare. Extra patrolmen and mounted police in the black belt were occupied in breaking up scattered encounters. There was little shooting and that did not matter.

The stockyards with a heavy proportion of colored workers was the storm center early in the day. In all big plants there were extra workmen to preserve order. Officers could not prevent numerous fist fights. The body of the negro reported drowned yesterday at the beginning of the trouble caused by an invasion of a white bathing beach by negroes had not been recovered today.

HUGHES IN FAVOR OF RESERVATIONS

Declares Himself in Favor of a League of Nations Under Certain Conditions.

URGES RIGHT OF WITHDRAWAL

Insists That Monroe Doctrine Be Continued to Protect Purely American Interests.

By United Press

Washington, July 28.—Charles E. Hughes in a letter to Senator Hale, Maine, made public today, declared in favor of a league of nations, but maintained that certain reservations and interpretations to the present covenant were necessary to protect American interests. The interpretative reservations suggested by Hughes were:

That any nation giving the two years notice of withdrawal shall cease to be a member of the league, despite any charge of non-fulfillment of an international obligation, providing the withdrawal would not release the power from any debts or liability.

That questions relating to immigration or import duties when they do not affect any international engagement, should be regarded as matters of domestic policy and not within the jurisdiction of the league.

That the United States under article 21, of the covenant referring to the Monroe doctrine, does not relinquish any of its traditional attitudes towards purely American questions, and that the United States may prevent acquisition by any not American power of any territory or control in the western hemisphere.

4. That the United States, under Article 10 of the covenant, does not assume any obligation to employ its army or navy in any expedition that is not authorized by congress.

Hughes letter was in response to a communication from Hale, in which the latter asked the former supreme court justice for his opinion as to what reservations to the peace treaty and league covenant should be made "to safeguard the interests of our country." Hale said that "many of us are in favor of having the United States enter a league of nations, provided that in so doing we do not sacrifice the sovereignty or traditional policies of our country." He added that "we believe the proposed covenant now before the senate does make such a sacrifice."

"There is plain need for a league of nations," Hughes replied, "in order to provide for the adequate development of international law, for creating and maintaining organs of international justice and the machinery of conciliation and conference, and for giving effect to measures of international co-operation which from time to time may be agreed upon."

"It is manifest that every reasonable effort should be made to establish peace as a promptly as possible and to bring about a condition in which Europe can resume its normal industrial activity."

Hughes said he perceived no reason "why these objects cannot be obtained without sacrificing the essential interests of the United States," and suggested there was a "middle ground between aloofness and injurious commitments."

"One must take a light hearted view of conditions in the world to assume that the proposed plan will guarantee peace," he said. "Rather, the proposed covenant should be regarded as a mere beginning."

According to Hughes, the prudent "course would be to enter the proposed league with reservations of a reasonable character * * * which should meet with ready assent."

Regarding the validity of reservations, Hughes said there was no need to assume that a reservation would lead to the complete failure of the treaty or compel a resumption of the peace conference, when the reservation leaves unimpaired the main provisions of the covenant. He added that any nations making reservations is not bound further than it agrees to be bound.

WILSON PREPARES FOR SPEAKING TOUR

During His Absence House Will Re-cess, But Committees Will Work on Many Bills.

WILL MEET CONGRESSMEN

Most of His Addresses Will Be Made on Eastward Journey After Trip to Coast.

Washington, July 28.—Before starting his tour of the United States, President Wilson probably will have a number of conferences with democratic leaders in both senate and house, to advise with him regarding important pending legislation. During his absence the house will recess, but many committees will be whipping measures into shape. In the senate the treaty and league of nations debate will continue.

The president's departure is now looked for about Wednesday of next week. In the ten days remaining before the start, Wilson is expected to make one or two visits to the capital to meet leaders. His visit last Saturday was postponed due to absence of men he wished to see.

While he is "on the road," the president will keep in close touch with the situation in Washington and plans will be made to give him reports of the proceedings and speeches here, so that he may keep his own speeches up to date and at the same time be in a position to advise administration leaders by telegraph.

Wilson was expected to see several democratic congressmen today. No more conferences with republican senators had been scheduled, so far as could be learned. However, there was no confirmation of rumors that these conferences had been definitely discontinued. One of the last to visit Wilson was Senator Spencer of Missouri who presented suggestions for five reservations to the covenant, based on former President Taft's ideas and which, it was later made known, the president did not regard with favor.

Some friends of the president insist he will make a statement before he starts west, to make absolutely clear his attitude toward reservations. The white house has let it be known during the last week that he was against any compromise but persistent rumors that he would agree to a program of interpretative reservations may make it expedient, it is believed, for him to put himself flatly on record.

Wilson's speeches will be roughly framed in the White House, it is said, and will take the form of statements of commissions, which in the president's opinion make an American acceptance of the league of nations and the peace treaty, as it stands, imperative. These speeches will be varied to meet the verbal attacks of treaty foes in the capitol and to answer any new objection to various clauses.

According to present plans he will not have a special train, but his car with those of the secret service and newspaper men will be attached to (Continued on page 4, column 1.)

PEACE IS HERE

SAVE MONEY

But war-time thrift must continue if we are to feed and clothe the homeless thousands stricken in Europe and fulfill our mission of making the world safe for democracy. The hope, or inclination to hope, that a decline in prices will follow the cessation of hostilities has no sound basis of reason. The present prices, as previously, are based on supply and demand, rather than on the armies in the field.
The shortage was caused by the war, but signing the armistice and the cessation of fighting cannot immediately increase the supply, accordingly cannot materially affect prices until the supply has been increased by production. It is likely also a huge force will have to remain abroad to safeguard the interests of the Government; the war work will continue at top speed for a long time, even after the signing of peace. While it is apparent prices will not go down, neither will ascend, you need not pay high prices based on the present high cost for in this SALE, as long as this stock lasts, you can pay what ordinarily were wholesale prices two years ago.

In order to prove to you what tremendous sacrifices must be made, we mention a few of the extraordinary bargains that will be offered. And bear in mind there are many different articles we cannot mention here. We advise you to save this and bring it with you, so that there is no mistake and that you get the goods worked on by thieves in an attempt to destroy all marks of identity. However, Mr. Koverner and others who were acquainted with the stolen automobile are sure that it is his car.

The three men following their arrest, stoutly denied having been in Crothersville or Jackson county for over six months and say they purchased the car which is alleged to have been stolen.

Warrants for the men's arrest were issued in Justice John Congdon's court. Each of the men arrested gave bond in the sum of $500 for their appearance in the local court when their cases are set for trial.

MILLIONS Suffer from Acid-Stomach

Millions of people suffer year after year from ailments affecting practically every part of the body, never dreaming that their ill health can be traced directly to acid-stomach. Here is the reason: poor digestion means poor nourishment of the different organs and tissues of the body. The blood is impoverished—becomes weak, thin, sluggish. Ailments of many kinds spring from such conditions. Biliousness, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, general weakness, loss of power and energy, headaches, insomnia, nervousness, mental depression—even more serious ailments such as catarrh and cancer of the stomach, intestinal ulcers, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble—all of these can often be traced directly to acid-stomach.

Keep a sharp lookout for the first symptoms of acid-stomach—indigestion, heartburn, belching, food repeating, that awful painful bloating after eating, and sour, gassy stomach. EATONIC, the wonderful modern remedy for acid-stomach, is guaranteed to bring quick relief from these stomach troubles. Thousands say they never dreamed that anything could bring such speedy relief—and make them feel so much better in every way. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise. Make your life worth living—no aches or pains—no blues or melancholy—no more of that tired, listless feeling. Be well and strong. Get back your physical and mental punch, your vim, vigor and vitality. You will always be weak and ailing as long as you have acid-stomach. So get rid of it now. Take EATONIC Tablets—they taste good—you eat them like a bit of candy. Your druggist has EATONIC—50 cents for a big box. Get a box from him today and if you are not satisfied he will refund your money.

COUNTY SURVEYORS ARE OPPOSED TO PERCENT LAW

Charge That Governor Goodrich is Attempting to Put Office Under Highway Commission.

By United Press
Indianapolis, July 28.—Protesting against the present law governing county surveyors and charging that Governor Goodrich is trying to put this office under the state highway commission, the Indiana County Surveyors' Association came to Indianapolis today to draw a bill for presentation to the next legislature providing new regulations. It was considered probable that such a bill would be presented to the special session of the legislature, called for August or September. A similar law was passed without a dissenting vote by the 1919 legislature and the governor vetoed it.

The surveyors say the present law makes the surveyor's office virtually worthless to the incumbent. The law allowed $4 a day for ditch work and provides that the surveyor shall pay the expense of his deputies and shall receive no money from them. The elected surveyor, however, must assume all responsibilities of the office under $25,000 bond. The state board of accounts allows the surveyor $5 a day, but this is not legal and upon complaint, from residents freeholder the money collected under this ruling would have to be refunded.

Now Is a Good Time To Drive Out Catarrh

The Trouble Is in the Blood.

Summer catarrh, with its nauseous discharge, stuffed up glands, difficult breathing, and summer colds, is bad enough, but the worst of it is yet to come if you neglect to check the growth that is forming to attack you with ten-fold greater power during the winter. That's why it is so important to treat catarrh with S. S. S. during warm weather.

It is now an established fact that catarrh is in the blood and that lotions and salves do not give relief. The experience of others has proven that S. S. S. strikes at the root of the trouble. Waste no time in this matter, for it is of the utmost importance. Write to our Medical Advisor about your case. Address Swift Specific Co., Dept. 53, Atlanta, Ga.

Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.

By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.

Timidity, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardliness, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.

People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support.

There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but as men now go, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-feren every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded; the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anaemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

Spain from wresting from the Cubans their individual rights and liberties. The principle of the atonement was taught to the world by the United States during the recent war, the speaker said.

Mr. Grafton referred to the reconstruction period which developed from the war. He said that new ideals were set up and that new responsibilities rested upon the individual and the community. He emphasized the necessity of protecting the children that the coming generations might be strong in health and body and pure and clean in mind. The reconstruction period must be founded upon the principles of the church, he said, and that the great problems would have to be worked out by those who recognize the tenets of the Master or the services of the heroes of the recent struggle would be in vain.

Another strong address was delivered Sunday afternoon by Dr. Putnam, a member of the faculty of Butler College, Indianapolis. He also devoted his remarks to the reconstruction work which is ahead of this nation as the leader of the world. He pointed out the necessity individual effort according to the teachings of God if the problems of equality and brotherly love are to be successfully solved.

Special musical numbers were given at the services. Hallie Holder sang a beautiful solo in the afternoon and the audience was much pleased with a cornet solo by Kingsley Brinklow. Selections by the Seymour Concert Band were played as a prelude to the afternoon service. There was also a short period of community singing before each service was called to order. The members of the local ministerial association were in charge of the services and presided Earl Watson presided at the piano for the congregational singing.

The Magnificent Ambersons

BY

CHAPTER I.

Major Amberson had "made a fortune" in 1873, when other people were losing fortunes, and the magnificence of the Ambersons began then. Their splendor lasted all the years that saw their Midland town spread and darken into a city, but reached its topmost during the period when every prosperous family with children kept a Newfoundland dog.

In that town in those days all the women who wore silk or velvet knew all the other women who wore silk or velvet, and when there was a new purchase of sealskin sick people were got to windows to see it go by. Everybody knew everybody else's family horse and carriage, could identify such a silhouette half a mile down the street, and thereby was sure who was going to market or to a reception or coming home from office or store to noon dinner or evening supper.

During the earlier years of this period elegance of personal appearance was believed to rest more upon the texture of garments than upon their shaping. A silk dress needed no remodeling when it was a year or so old; it remained distinguished by merely remaining silk. Old men and governors wore broadcloth; "full dress" was broadcloth with "doeskin" trousers; and there were seen men of all ages to whom a hat meant only that rigid, tall silk thing known to impudence as a "stovepipe." In town and country these men would wear no other hat, and, without self-consciousness, they went rowing in such hats.

Trousers with a crease were considered plebeian; the crease proved that the garment had lain upon a shelf, and hence was "ready made;" these betraying trousers were called "hand-me-downs," in allusion to the shelf. In the early eighties, while bangs and bustles were having their way with women, that variation of dandy known as the "dude" was invented: he wore trousers as tight as stockings, dagger-pointed shoes, a spoon "derby," a single-breasted coat called a "Chesterfield," with short flaring skirts, a torturing cylindrical collar, laundered to a polish and three inches high, while his other neckgear might be a heavy, puffed cravat or a tiny bow fit for a doll's braids. With evening dress he wore a tan overcoat so short that his black coat tails hung visible, five inches below the overcoat; but after a season or two he lengthened his overcoat till it touched his heels, and he passed out of his tight trousers into trousers like great bags. Then presently he was seen no more, though the word that had been coined for him remained in the vocabularies of the impertinent.

Surely no more is needed to prove that so short a time ago we were living in another age!

At the beginning of the Ambersons' great period most of the houses of the Midland town were of a pleasant architecture. They lacked style, but also pretentiousness, and whatever does not pretend at all has style enough. They stood in commodious yards, well shaded by leftover forest trees, elm and walnut and beech, with here and there a line of tall sycamores where the land had been made by filling bayous from the creek. The house of a "prominent resident," facing Military square or National avenue or Tennessee street, was built of brick upon a stone foundation, or of wood upon a brick foundation. Usually it had a "front porch" and a "back porch," often a "side porch," too. There was a "front hall," there was a "side hall," and sometimes a "back hall." From the "front hall" opened three rooms, the "parlor," the "sitting room" and the "library;" and the library could show warrant to its title—for some reason these people bought books. Commonly the family sat more in the library than in the "sitting room," while callers, when they came formally, were kept to the "parlor," a place of formidable polish and discomfort. The upholstery of the library furniture was a little shabby, but the hostile chairs and sofa of the "parlor" always looked new. For all the wear and tear they got they should have lasted a thousand years.

Upstairs were the bedrooms; "mother and father's room" the largest; a smaller room for one or two sons, another for one or two daughters; each of these rooms containing a double bed, a "washstand," a "bureau," a wardrobe, a little table, a rocking chair, and often a chair or two that had been slightly damaged downstairs, but not enough to justify either the expense of repair or decisive abandonment in the attic. And there was always a "spare room," for visitors (where the sewing machine usually was kept), and during the seventies there developed an appreciation of the necessity for a bathroom.

At the rear of the house, upstairs, was a bleak little chamber, called "the girl's room," and in the stable there was another bedroom, adjoining the hayloft, and called "the hired man's room." House and stable cost seven or eight thousand dollars to build, and people with that much money to invest in such comforts were classified as the Rich. They paid the inhabitant of "the girl's room" two dollars a week, and, in the latter part of this period, two dollars and a half, and finally three dollars a week. She was Irish ordinarily, or German, or it might be Scandinavian, but never native to the land unless she happened to be a person of color. The man or youth who lived in the stable had like wages, and sometimes, too, was lately a steerage voyager, but much oftener he was colored.

After sunrise on pleasant mornings the alleys behind the stables were gay; laughter and shouting went up and down their dusty lengths, with a lively accompaniment of curryscombs knocking against back fences and stable walls, for the darkies loved to curry their horses in the alleys. Darkies always prefer to gossip in shouts instead of whispers, and they feel that profanity, unless it be vociferous, is almost worthless. Horrible phrases were caught by early rising children and carried to older people for definition, sometimes at inopportune moments; while less investigative children would often merely repeat the phrases in some subsequent flurry of agitation, and yet bring about consequences so emphatic as to be recalled with ease in middle life.

They have passed, those darky hired men of the Midland town. The stables have been transformed into other likenesses, or swept away, like the woodsheds where were kept the stovewood and kindling that the "girl" and the "hired man" always quarreled over; who should fetch it.

So with other vanishings. There were the little bunty street cars on the long, single track that went its troubled way among the cobblestones. At the rear door of the car there was no platform, but a step where passengers clung in wet clumps when the weather was bad and the car crowded. The patrons—if not too absent-minded—put their fares into a slot; and no conductor paced the heaving floor, but the driver would rap remindingly with his elbow upon the glass of the door to his little open platform if the nickels and the passengers did not appear to coincide in number. A lone mule drew the car, and sometimes drew it off the track, when the passengers would get out and push it on again. They really owed it courtesies like this, for the car was gonially accommodating: a lady could whistle to it from an upstairs window, and the car would halt at once and wait for her while she shut the window, put on her hat and cloak, went downstairs, found an umbrella, told the "girl" what to have for dinner, and came forth from the house.

They even had time to dance "square dances," quadrilles and "lancers;" they also danced the "rackette" and schottisches and polkas, and such whims as the "Portland fancy." They pushed back the sliding doors between the "parlor" and the "sitting room," tacked down crash over the carpets, hired a few palms in green tubs, stationed three or four Italian musicians under the stairway in the "front hall"—and had great nights!

"Keeping open house," was a merry custom; it has gone, like the all-day picnic in the woods, and like that prettiest of all vanished customs, the serenade. When a lively girl visited the town she did not long go un serenaded, though a visitor was not indeed needed to excuse a serenade. Of a summer night young men would bring an orchestra under a pretty girl's window—or, it might be, her father's, or that of an ailing maiden aunt—and flute, harp, cello, cornet and bass viol would pleasantly release the dulcet stars such melodies as sing through "You'll Remember Me," "I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls," "Silver Threads Among the Gold," "Kathleen Mavourneen," or "The Soldier's Farewell."

Croquet and the mildest archery ever known were the sports of people still young and active enough for so much exertion; middle age played euchre. There was a theater, next door to the Amberson hotel, and when Edwin Booth came for a night everybody who could afford to buy a ticket was there, and all the "backs" in town were hired. "The Black Crook" also filled the theater, but the audience then was almost entirely of men, who looked uneasy as they left for home when the final curtain fell upon the shocking girls dressed as fairies. But the theater did not often do so well; the people of the town were still too thrifty.

They were thrifty because they were the sons or grandsons of the "early settlers," who had opened the wilderness and had reached it from the East and the South with wagons and axes and guns, but with no money at all. The pioneers were thrifty or they would have perished: they had to store away food for the winter, or goods to trade for food, and they often feared they had not stored enough—they left traces of that fear in their sons and grandsons. In the minds of most of these, indeed, their thrift was next to their religion; to save, even for the sake of saving, was their earliest lesson and discipline. No matter how prosperous they were they could not spend money either upon "art," or upon mere luxury and entertainment, without a sense of sin.

Against so homespun a background the magnificence of the Ambersons was as conspicuous as a brass band at a funeral. Major Amberson bought two hundred acres of land at the end of National avenue; and through this tract he built broad streets and cross-streets; paved them with cedar block, and curbed them with stone. He set up fountains, here and there, where the streets intersected, and at symmetrical intervals placed cast-iron statues, painted white, with their titles clear upon the pedestals; Minerva, Mercury, Hercules, Venus, Gladiator, Emperor Augustus, Fisher Boy, Stag-hound, Mastiff, Greyhound, Fawn, Antelope, Wounded Doe and Wounded Lion. Most of the forest trees had been left to flourish still, and, at some distance, or by moonlight, the place was in truth beautiful; but the ardent citizen, loving to see his city grow, wanted neither distance nor moonlight. He had not seen Versailles, but, standing before the fountain of Neptune in Amberson addition, at bright noon, and quoting the favorite comparison of the local newspapers he declared Versailles outdone. All this Art showed a profit from the start, for the lots sold well and there was something like a rush to build in the new Addition. Its main thoroughfare, an oblique continuation of National avenue, was called Amberson boulevard, and here, at the juncture of the new boulevard and the avenue, Major Amberson reserved four acres for himself and built his new house—the Amberson mansion, of course.

This house was the pride of the town. Faced with stone as far back as the dining-room windows, it was a house of arches and turrets and girdling stone porches: it had the first porte cochere seen in that town. There was a central "front hall" with a great black-walnut stairway, and open to a green glass skylight called the "dome," three stories above the ground floor. A ballroom occupied most of the third story, and at one end of it was carved a walnut gallery for the musicians. Citizens told strangers that the cost of all this black walnut and wood carving was sixty thousand dollars. "Sixty thousand dollars for the woodwork alone! Yes, sir, and hardwood floors all over the house! Turkish rugs and no carpets at all, except a Brussels carpet in the front parlor—I hear they call it the 'reception room.' Hot and cold water upstairs and down, and stationary washstands in every bedroom in the place! Their sideboard's built right into the house and goes all the way across one end of the dining room. It isn't walnut, it's solid mahogany! Not veneering—solid mahogany! Well, sir, I presume the president of the United States would be tickled to swap the White House for the new Amberson mansion, if the Major'd give him the chance—"

The visitor to the town was certain to receive further enlightenment, for there was one form of entertainment never omitted: he was always patriotically taken for "a little drive round our city," even if his host had to hire a hack, and the climax of the display was the Amberson mansion. "Look at that greenhouse they've put up there in the side yard," the escort would continue. "And look at that brick stable! Most folks would think that stable plenty big enough and good enough to live in; it's got running water and four rooms upstairs for two hired men and one of 'em's family to live in. They keep one hired man loafin' in the house, and they got a married hired man out in the stable, and his wife does the washing. This town never did see so much style as Ambersons are putting on these days; and I guess it's going to be expensive, because a lot of other folks'll try to keep up with 'em. The Major's wife and the daughter's been to Europe, and my wife tells me since they got back they make tea there every afternoon about five o'clock and drink it.

Your Red Cross Is Still Busy

READ WHAT YOUR DOLLAR IS DOING

THE best dollar any community can spend is the dollar it invests in conservation of community life and health. It yields biggest returns. The finest advertising asset which a community can have is a low sickness and death rate.

The community nurse is a form of insurance which no community can afford to be without. The community nurse cares for the sick, protects the well and teaches the principles of good health to all. She is the "lookout on the Mountain," giving the first warning of the approach of the enemy, disease. Through its endless chain of chapters, 375 of them in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky alone, the organization is to help to promote the establishment of rural and community nursing.

If you live in the country or a small town and you wish to know how to organize, how to raise funds, how to carry on your work, where to get a nurse, what she will do, write to the director of the Red Cross Bureau of Public Health Nursing in the Lake Division, Cleveland, Ohio.

A Red Cross nurse in every community is the ultimate aim. Just now the depleted ranks of the nurses provide too small a personnel to make the immediate realization of the plan possible.

The American Red Cross is urging every nurse to enroll for peace-time service. With an eye to future needs, the Red Cross is also urging the young women of the country who are just graduating from schools and colleges to enter the nursing profession.

Consider the Red Cross conclusion—Twelve million school days are lost to measles every year.

Nine labor days are lost through sickness by the average working man every year.

Every fifteen seconds a human being is injured; every fifteen minutes one is killed.

Two and a half million soldiers were rejected in the first draft.

The death rate over 40 is rising.

Therefore march with the Red Cross in the advance against disease.

Do your share for the health of the world.

CURES FLU WITH RED CROSS TEXT BOOK.

THE story of one woman in the Lake Division is typical of many who are thoroughly convinced of the value of Red Cross courses in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick.

In a small Ohio town during the flu epidemic a sufficient number of nurses was not available. In this woman's family her husband and two children were ill.

"I couldn't get help," she said, "but someone told me about a book to read that would help me—a Red Cross book on how to take care of the sick members of the family when there wasn't any chance of giving them professional care."

She read it, did as the book directed, and pulled the family through the disease.

Such experience as this woman has had brings a realization of the importance of this training for every woman. In times of epidemic or disaster lives may be saved by the knowledge of simple rules and methods such as the Red Cross supply.

Plans are being made throughout the Lake Division to extend the number of these Red Cross teaching centers. Each chapter is being urged to obtain instructors for these courses and establish classes in their district.

Have you enrolled at your chapter teaching center?

BUREAU OF NURSING OUTLINES 'QUALIFICATIONS FOR PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES AND INSTRUCTORS.

BECAUSE of the confusion arising in regard to the qualifications of Red Cross nurses in public health service, the Division Bureau of Nursing announces the regulations for that service.

In order to be appointed to this work a nurse must be enrolled for active service in the Red Cross; must be registered in the state; must have had at least eight months' experience in supervised public health work, or have taken a course in public health nursing. She may be recommended by a chapter but all nursing appointments are made by the Bureau of Nursing of the Lake Division. The nurse is urged to apply for work in the community in which she lives because a knowledge of local conditions is valuable.

This part of the Red Cross peace-time service to humanity is purposely restricted to rural districts or to towns having a population of about thirty thousand where the need is greatest. It is conducted by the Bureau of Public Health Nursing which is a bureau of the Department of Nursing of the organization which sent overseas 24,000 nurses to help win the war and now launches a nation-wide fight against preventable disease.

WILSON GIVEN PROPOSED FLAG FOR THE LEAGUE

Senator Thomas, Colorado, Confers With President Regarding Covenant.

By United Press

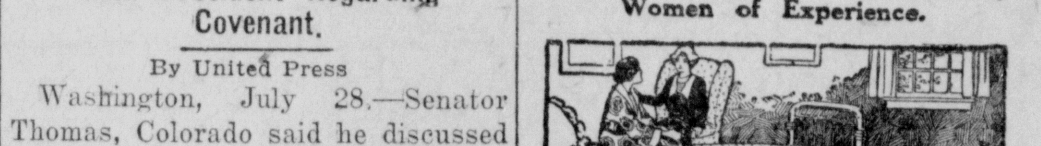

Washington, July 28.—Senator Thomas, Colorado said he discussed both the covenant and the peace treaty with the president and said he gained information on some points which were not entirely clear. He refused to say whether he favored or opposed the league.

A flag has been presented to the president proposed for the league of nations. It contains a large blue star on a background of white. On the blue star are twenty-six white stars, representing the principal stars. In the flag also is a red cross significant of the relief of suffering.

John A. Barnett will leave tonight for Franklin to attend the Baptist Assembly.

A Woman's Story With Great Meaning

Subject of Childbirth Discussed by Women of Experience.

Women everywhere tell their friends how, through the use of Mother's Friend, the wonderful penetrating remedy, they avoided suffering and distress before the advent of nature's most wonderful evolution.

Mother's Friend is a remedy which spreads its influence upon the cords, nerves and ligaments involved, rendering them pliant to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion. The nerves, cords, tendons and ligaments expand without that peculiar wrenching strain, and nervousness, nausea and unrestful sensations are naturally avoided when the nerves and muscles are relieved and thus are not tort and drawn.

By regular use, the lower abdominal region expands with ease when baby is born, the hours are less at the crisis, and pain and danger is naturally less.

You can obtain Mother's Friend from any drug store. It has been used by women for over half a century, and is just as standard as anything you can think of.

Write the Bradford Regulator Company, Dept. H, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their Motherhood Book, and get a bottle of Mother's Friend today, and then fortify yourself against pain and discomfort.
